LABOR FEDERATION.

SENSATIONAL PROPOSAL AS TO ANARCHISTS.

The Homestead Troubles---Aid for Cour d' Alene and Tennessee.

[By telegraph to the Dispatch.]

PHILADELPHIA, PA., December 13.-The second day's session of the twelfth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor was called to order by President Gompers at 9 A. M. The president read telegrams from Eugene K. Debs and Frank P. Sargent, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, and W. J. Gilthorpe, of the International Brotherhood of Boiler-Makers and Ship-Builders. The most significant dispatch was from Thomas Mitchell, of Chicago, president of the Trades and Labor Assembly, which read: "At a special meeting of the Trades Assembly a resolution was passed denouncing the giving of the catalogue printing to Con-key and requesting the federation not to pass a resolution favoring Sunday open-ing of the World's Fair."

A SENSATIONAL PROPOSITION. A number of resolutions were referred to the appropriate committees, the most sensational of which was the following, offered by Delegate Morgan, of Chicago

"Resolved, That this convention join in the plea to the Governor of the State of Illinois for the pardon of Samuel Fielden, Oscar Neebe, and Michael

Schwab. George E. McNeil, of Boston, then read a paper on the labor problem.

Delegate Keffington, of Boston, presented the report of the Committee on the President's Report, recommended. ing that the convention donate $1,000 to aid the defence of arrested it ikers, This was adopted. THE HOMESTEAD TROUBLES.

President Weihe, of the Amalgamated Association, made a detailed statement of the Homestead troubles, and said that 225 men are now under indictment, of whom five are charged with murder, over thirty with treason, and the remainder with conspiracy and riot. Four hundred thousand dollars have been tried at court, and the grand interface. given in bail bonds for the release of a number of the accused. Although many for lawyers and witness fees.

Second Vice-President Carney, of Pittsburg, who is also connected with the Amalgamated Association, made an address on the Homestead situation, and said that because of the laws of the association no strike benefits were paid its members during July and August, but that during those months $35,000 elegant and commodious hotel will be erected and cottages built. A steamferry will be established from the termi-nus of the road at Willoughby Spit to Old Point, and large and modern ferry-boats will be purchased for the service. The company will reduce the rates from Nerfolk to Ocean View and Willoughby Spit from 25 cents (the present price) to 10 cents. If the city will grant the franchises the line will be extended down Chapel street to some point in the heart of the city.

Railway Telegraph Strikes. (By telegraph to the Dispatch.)

CHICAGO, December 13.-Grand-Chief Ramsay, of the Order of Railway Telegraphers, said to-day that he was more confident than ever that the Rock Island telegraphers would win their strike. General-Manager St. John says applications for work from operators all over the country are rolling in, but that in each instance he replies that there is no Chief Ramsay says there will be no strike of telegraphers on the Big-Four road. The general manager of that company, he says, is arranging with the operators for a 12 per cent, increase of It is now certain that the members of the other railroad organizations are not to be called out. After many consultations on the subject this decision has been arrived at, and Chief Ramsay is not sorry for the fact. Neither is there likely to be a strike of telegraphers on any other road.

FREIGHTS TIED UP.

Rome, Ga., December 13,-The strike of the operators on the Georgia Central railroad has caused all freight trains on the C. F. and C. road to be tied up to-day. Nome was the only office which did not go out. It is reported that some of the important offices are being filled with non-union men. The operators are hopeful and so are the railroad officials.

CUUR D'ALENE AND TENNESSEE.

First Vice-President McGuire, of Philadelphia, moved that $500 be contributed to the defence fund of the Court d'Alene miners. This went through with a rush, but when Delegate Todden hausen, of Knoxylle, Tenn., made a motion that $500 be appropriated by the control of the General Andreas and the family of the support of the Tennessee miners seeme of the delegates thought the mailer was being carried too far. A general objection followed, but the motion was adopted.

The federation then adjourned until the more was adopted.

Gloves at Afternoon Teas.

Gloves, the crowning finish of a well-dressed woman's costume in public, have been of late years greatly misused in American society, writes Mrs. Burton Harrison authoritatively in the second of her papers in the series of the "Well-Bred Gril in Society," in the December Ladies' Hame Journal. One sees them worn at teatables by the woman elected to represent the hostess in pouring tea, and even at dinner tables, where the wearers have been known to sit through many courses with their right hands bared, the hand of the right glove tucked under the wrist, and the entire left glove kept on. From time immemorial the habitual dinner-goers of good society have removed both gloves immediately after taking their places at the table, and have resumed them upon returning to the drawing-room, or after using the finger bowls, and before arising from the feast. Any departure from accepted custom that has only set in a heedless moment by some leader of vogue or by an unfortunate woman of rank whose hand was made unpresentable by a disfiguring injury.

Should be avoided and most through his appreciate the relief to him from eeaseless distress, which, in his opinion, ought to be trough his abrough by the physician who is summoned with his drugs, surely for that purpose, but not for cure."

A caretaker banged himself, and his last letter said: "I have got to leave here, but I have no money to pay for a toom and nowhers to lay my head."

A Bermondsey grocer had not so definite a reason as hopelesaness.

Break it gently to my poor wife, he words if you have no money to pay for a toom and nowhers to lay my head."

A Warwickshire tradesman was "unable to bear it any longer." but his letter requested an accountant to "go through his books,"

But, for almost flippant indifference, we wait the flow of the will appreciate the relief to him from ceaseless distress, which, in his opinion, ought to be thorugh the twent his provable to he propose, but not for cure."

eccentricity or a desire for innovation to recommend it should be avoided; hence there seems no cause for taking up the curious fashion just mentioned, probably set in a heedless moment by some leader of vorue or by an unfortunate woman of rank whose hand was made unpresentable by a disfiguring injury.

Churches Always Open.

"When I get rich," said a business-man to a New York Son writer, "I am going to give away a lot of churches, but I shall not give anybody a church unless he or she will agree to keep it open on week days as well as Sundays. There has been in recent years an increase in the number of Protestant churches kept open through the week, but I would like to see more of them. I imagine that one reason why churches on week days. It seems to me that the expense attending it, and doubtless many persons think that people are all or nearly all too busy to spend time in churches on week-days. It seems to me that the expense should not stand in the way, and I am inclined to think that the expense of such opportunity for rest and meditation is greater than is generally supposed. I know that I have never entered a church in New York on a week-day without finding somebody there. I should like not only to have more of the entered a church in New York on a weekday without finding somebody there. I should like not only to have more of the churches kept open on week-days, but to have more of them open for a longer period each day, and I would like to keep some of them open all night. It is easy to see that there might be some objection to this; still I would like to see churches whose doors would always be open to every wayfarer."

The Parson's Ordeal.

[Walker County (Ga.) Messenger.]

Just after the battle of Perryville, in October, 1862, Dr. Savage, a strong Union man, was at one of his appointments to baptize some children. There was a large crowd, and a sturdy southern matron brought her four children to the altar.

"Name this child," said the Union preacher, laying his hand on the boy's head.

"Simon Belivar Buckner," was the reply, which caused a smile to come over the congregation, but the brave preacher went on with his duty.

"Name this child," taking the next in order. "Pierre Gustave Totant Beauregard," and the smile grew into a snicker, while Dr. Savage became red in the face. He baptized the young namesake of the great engineer soldier and went on with the ceremony. "Name this one," he gasped, reaching for the third, "Albert Sidney Johnston," came the answer. The smile became audible and the preacher apoplectic. Heaving a sigh of relief, he took the fourth child, a little girl, whose gender he fondly supposed would preclude a continuation of heroic reproduction, and said: "Name this child," "Mary Stonewall Jackson Lee," came the response that set the congregation in a roar, while the Union parson thought he had held in his arms the whole Southern Confederacy. though worthy of such attention. It is generally cultivated in England and throughout Europe.

The native flora about Baltimore numbers of plants have been introduced here from Europe by ballast brought in vessels to Locust Point and Canton. Botanists have much pleasure in studying these foreign additions to the Baltimore fora. The flowers found in an area of about twenty-five square miles about Baltimore are known as the Baltimore flora.

quently in His Novels.

As a "very queer small boy" Charles Dickens used to walk up to the house—it stood on the summit of Gad's Hill—on holidays or when his heart sched for a "great treat," writes Mamie Dickens in the Ladies' Home Journal.

He would stand and look at it, for as a little fellow he had a wonderful liking and admiration for the house, and it was to him like no other house he had ever seen. He would walk up and down before it with his father, gazing at it with delight, and the latter would tell him that perhaps if he worked hard, was industrious, and grew up to be a good man, he might some day come to live in that very house.

His love for this place went through his whole lite and was with him until his death. He takes "Mr. Pickwick" and his triends from Rochester to Cobham by the beautiful back road, and I remember one day when we were driving that way he showed me the exact spot where Mr Winkle called out:

The French Girl's Hero. The French Girl's Hero.

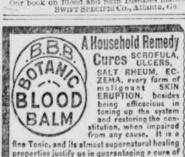

A French girl feels that there is just one companion as delightful as her mother, just one friend in the world as trusty, just one confident as sympathetic, and that is her father, writes Henrietta C. Dana in an attractive paper on "The French Girl and Her Father" in the December Lades' Home Journal. He is her hero and the knight of her dreams. Often and often have I seen the girls at school hiding their father's photograph in the leaves of their school-books, kissing it enthusiastically on the sly, graph in the leaves of their school-books, kissing it enthusiastically on the siy, pressing it to their hearts when they go to chapel to say their prayers, sewing his last letter in their dresses, treasuring some little keepsake in their pocket. And when they meet one can see how the father returns his daughter's feeling by his tender clasp of her pure young hand, and the adoring affection with which belooks down into her eyes. He allows nothing to keep him back from meeting her as she comes from school and giving her his arm—for every French gentleman extends this mark of protection and respect to the women of of protection and respect to the women of his family—they start off on their long, happy walk, and many a merry romp, many a tender confidence, do they have in the short evening that follows till her early bedtime at 8 o'clock.
